Market Thoughts for April

It was a decent month and a great quarter for markets, both in the U.S. and around the world, says Commonwealth Chief Investment Officer, Brad McMillan. Globally, economics are very positive, which supports financial markets. Fundamental factors are also improving, and that looks likely to continue. What do we need to worry about? One word: politics. Although markets have largely priced in U.S. political risk, Europe poses greater concerns. Overall, though, the picture is quite positive going forward.

We hope you enjoy this month's video.

Upgrade to the Latest Version of Internet Explorer

If you use Internet Explorer, future updates to Investor360® will require that you are running the latest version, IE11.

If you access the web using Microsoft Edge, Google Chrome, Safari, or Firefox, there is nothing you need to do, as these browsers update automatically.

To see which version of Internet Explorer you use, open your browser and navigate to Help > About Internet Explorer. If it is IE10 or lower, you can upgrade to IE11 for free.

Please note: If you have a computer running Windows XP or Vista, you should consider upgrading your computer. Microsoft no longer supports these operating systems, and they are not compatible with IE11.

If you have any questions about accessing Investor360®, or wish to discuss anything regarding your portfolio, feel free to contact our office.
